IN RESEARCH FOR DEVELOPMENT

Partners in Research for Development is the flagship publication of the Australian Centre for International Agricultural Research (ACIAR). Partners presents articles that summarise results from ACIAR-sponsored research projects and puts ACIAR research initiatives into perspective. Technical enquiries will be passed on to the appropriate researchers for reply. Reprinting of articles, either whole or in part, is welcomed, provided that the source is acknowledged.

This publication is freely available from ACIAR's website at aciar.gov.au. It is also freely available on request from ACIAR. The use of a trade name does not constitute any endorsement of, or discrimination against, any product by ACIAR.

Front cover:

Carolyn Misiel making her galip bread. All recipes use ingredients whose production has benefited from ACIAR-supported agricultural research initiatives. In the case of Ms Misiel's bread, a project is helping farmers to better manage the kernels and meal from the galip nut, which is native to the Pacific region. COVER PHOTO: BRETT HODGES

ACIAR'S VISION

ACIAR looks to a world where poverty has been reduced and the livelihoods of many improved through more productive and sustainable agriculture emerging from collaborative international research.

The Australian Centre for International Agricultural Research (ACIAR) operates as part of Australia's international development cooperation program, with a mission to achieve more productive and sustainable agricultural systems for the benefit of developing countries and Australia. ACIAR commissions collaborative research between Australian and developing-country researchers in areas where Australia has special research competence. It also administers Australia's contribution to the International Agricultural Research Centres.
